For those who have been reading my blog since the beginning, you will know that I have had a dream of visiting London for quite a long time; I heard the stories of it's sprawl, and knew that it would be a challenge to get to. Over the past several months, I have taken it upon myself to follow through on this dream. I've traveled a bit in the near past, and I felt that I've done just about everything I could to prepare for this. I've worked hard at my documentations, started some experimenting with my photography skills, and have been completely unbridled in my attempts to learn about the culture and city. I have uncovered countless reasons why this could be not only a great thing for me to try, but also a great way to blend multiple passions in my life. I'm very happy that I'm embarking on this quest. I will be open to suggestions, but first of all I will make it a point to find a hostel, and save more money. There are many people living in a tent (including myself), or
